Jasper Barnhouse House & Cemetery

Circa 1867

Asher Glade

Private

The Barnhouse House is a two-story, three-bay frame dwelling with a small cemetery on the SW side of the house. It is a well-preserved example of a common Garrett County house type of the mid-nineteenth through early twentieth centuries. It was built by a preacher and functioned as a school and church for a time.

The Jasper Barnhouse House and Cemetery are located on a dirt lane running northeast off Squire Fike Road, approximately one mile northwest of its intersection with Maryland Route 42.

The house is a two-story, T-plan, gable roof dwelling with a symmetrical 3-bay, center door facade. Shed-roofed, partially enclosed porches fill in the sides of the T at the rear and a one-story shed porch adorns the facade.

The house rests on a cut stone foundation and is covered with grey asphalt siding. All windows except the attic windows are 2 over 2 sash with pedimented plain board surrounds. In the attic on the northeast and southwest gable ends are one-pane lancet windows with plain board surrounds. The gable roof is standing seam metal, as are the front and rear porch roofs.

The house has three flues: one interior and one exterior at the NE gable end, and one exterior on the SW side of the T. The porch roof is supported by four columns.

The cemetery is a small plot on the SW side of the house. It has approximately two dozen graves and the earliest stone is dated 1886. Predominant names are Fike and Thomas.
